

PRIMARIES DEFECTS

...the signed a contract to appear in England for each year for $10,000. Soon after she was in England, where she has been for a higher salary than she offered her in England.

...son who doesn't want to go to England. An English agent, says, told her that if she married her contract would be cancelled. Inasmuch as she does not want a husband in the ordinary sense, she decided to make an offer for some one who would pick up a nice vacation and a good salary for himself. She will be glad to receive any application for the job at her hotel.

She consulted the local lawyer for the purpose of ascertaining if the marriage would really cancel the contract, and his advice was that it would be cancelled. She then consulted the English manager, who says that he wants too much money, however, and that she prefers the matrimonial way out.

FIGURES TELL A STORY OF HEROES

RICHMOND, VA.—Special.

The large group of seven soldiers and mounted cavaliers, part of the sculptural decoration for the Virginia State memorial at Gettysburg, which Mr. Sievers has just completed, arrests the attention and admiration of all who have had occasion to view it. The figures are of metal, and the work is of originality, beauty, and detail. The magnitude of the undertaking, the detail of conception, the skill displayed in execution, simply hold one in bewilderment.

The group measures sixteen feet in length, four feet eight inches in breadth and fifteen feet in height. All the figures are of metal, and the work is of originality, beauty, and detail. WOMAN BOBBED BY NEGROES

NEW YORK.—Special.—Two young women, each carrying a satchel, walked down Lexington Avenue at 8:50 o'clock Tuesday night and at 12:30 o'clock they were stopped by a trolley car. This is one of the most lonesome sections of the city.

Occasionally a policeman galloped past on his horse or an automobile sped by, but the neighborhood is practically deserted. For several minutes the girls waited. Then one of them screamed, dropped her satchel and started to run. At the same time a negro leaped from the trolley car and seized her, knocking her down with a club.

The other girl screamed, also, and ran at the negro, swinging her satchel. The negro was snatched from her hand and while she beat her on the head with the club, the girl who had been first attacked first went to the aid of her companion.

Both Beaten Inseparably.

The two then were beaten into insensibility. The negro tore their rings from their fingers and took several other small articles of jewelry and $5 in cash. Then, with the satchels, he made off.

After an hour or more the unconscious girls lay on the road. When they revived they were too weak from fright and their injuries to more than crawl, and it was nearly 10 o'clock before they reached the home of Dr. William A. Roberts, at 340 East 200th and First Street. They fell outside the house, but their cries were heard and Dr. Roberts carried them into the house.

The girls are Miss Susie Hayward and Miss Elizabeth Bechtolt, trained nurses, living in the nurses' home at 388 Lexington Avenue.

Miss Hayward was the more seriously injured. Dr. Roberts found a fracture of the skull, and possibly a fracture of the brain. The Bronx detective bureau was notified by Dr. Roberts, and a patrolman and Detective Quick accompanied him to the scene. So serious was Miss Hayward's condition that no attempt was made to get a description of the negro from her, but she was so hysterical that little could be got from her.

Later she said that Miss Hayward was first attacked by a negro and the first blow struck had probably caused her worst injury.

Dr. Roberts called in neighboring physicians for consultation and the nurses were advised to go to the hospital, but they refused, saying they could get as good care at the nurses' home as they were taken there in an automobile.

Miss Hayward and Miss Bechtolt had been employed on a case by Dr. Roberts and had just left the physician's home when the negro attacked them.

RESUME THE WORK OF MAKING BOOZE

FOUR DISTILLERIES START UP IN THIS DISTRICT AFTER A LONG IDLENESS.

RICHMOND, VA.—Special.

Although it looked some months ago as if the prohibition law would be closed in this section on account of the closing of several big distilleries in the vicinity of Richmond, it now appears that most of the inactive plants will shortly resume production—some of them with greatly increased capacity.

Yesterday the Stony Creek Distilling Company, of Henrico county, received from the State a necessary permit to resume work. This distillery has been closed for several months in order to undergo repairs and additions. New fermenting tanks have been added, and the plant's capacity is now doubled. In other words, it can at present produce 10,000 gallons a day.

Three other distilleries, after a long spell of idleness, have resumed work. These are the Chesterfield Distilling Company, the Pocahontas Distilling Company and the Old Dominion Distilling Company. Of the fifteen grain distilleries in the district those mentioned in the foregoing paragraphs are the only ones operating at present.

The renewed activities of the distilleries, of course, mean an immediate increase in Uncle Sam's revenues which, within the last few months, showed a tremendous falling off. Indeed, there is a feeling that when the booze-making business hereabouts appeared to have been utterly prostrate, this, in some measure, at least, appears to have been due to the activity of the Government in prosecuting violations of the revenue laws.

At any rate Uncle Sam certainly drew the lines pretty tightly on the breweries. Seven were closed by the revenue department on violations of the law and two plants were actually confiscated and sold at auction.

It was whispered in the same connection that the Government had imposed a heavy tax on the distilleries, and that the distilleries had great difficulty in complying with them. This report, however, was discounted by the local revenue office.

The question arose: Is this list exclusive as well as conclusive? As to this opinions differed. The Fourth District Committee held that it was exclusive, but not conclusive. That is to say, if a man was on the list his vote could not be questioned, but that if he was not on the list and was otherwise qualified, he could vote on his tax receipts.

DISCUSSED BY CORTELYOU

WASHINGTON, D. C., Special.

The Clapp committee investigating campaign expenditures today received from James G. Cannon, president of the Fourth National Bank of New York, a copy of the account kept at that bank by Cornelius N. Bliss, which was requested by the committee when Mr. Cannon was on the stand. The account shows that on October 27, 1904, $25,000 was deposited on October 31, 1904, $185,000 was deposited.

James O. Murphy, an attorney of Detroit, Mich., was the first to speak today. He described the wholesale purchase of aid for President Taft in the Wayne county convention fight in his State.

The witness declared: "It is a matter of general knowledge that the primaries in Detroit in elect delegates to the State convention, which, in turn, elected delegates to the National Convention, were the most rotten and corrupt the Michigan has ever seen. One side was bad as the other. Our money happened to be more skilful, and we got the delegates. Money was the only thing that counted in the primary."

Murphy said that he and Captain Fred Alger raised a sum of money and offered it to John McKay, an attorney, who was in charge of the Taft forces.

Murphy said he could not give specific instances of the purchase of delegates. He said Charles T. Nichols could do so for the Roosevelt forces, however.

George E. Bristow was next called to the stand and asked concerning the contribution of the Standard Oil Company to Colonel Roosevelt's campaign.

"Regarding the specific instance to which that refers," said he, "I will say that the matter was brought to my attention by letters and two telegrams from Theodore Roosevelt, covering a period of time from October 26th, to October 29th."

"I received the first letter and telegram in New York and the letter was shown to Mr. Bliss, as President of the Standard Oil Company, at the bottom, had asked that this communication I asked whether he had received any money from the Standard Oil Company. I did not show the second letter to him, as I had already received his response and denied on showing him the first communication."

The letters to which Cortelyou referred are the famous queries of President Roosevelt following the charges of Mr. McKim, Mr. Parker, that he was receiving aid from corporations. In them Roosevelt demanded a denial from him of the charges made against the administration.

STUMP DISTRICT IN AYERS' BEHALF

SECOND DISTRICT CONGRESSMAN TO HELP GEN. AYERS' CANDIDACY IN SOUTHWEST VA.

RICHMOND, VA.—Special.

Representative E. E. Holland, of the Second Congressional District, among those who have volunteered to aid Gen. Ayers in his campaign for the Ninth District in Southwest Virginia, has been glad to accept of his services.

The party authorities have arranged for him to appear there from October 26th to October 28th inclusive, and he will speak every day and night.

At present Colonel Holland is endeavoring his own district. He is booked to speak twice in Princess Anne county and once in Southwestern county next week, and will end his tour with an address at Boykins, Southampton county, November 2d.

At the close of this city, presidential election of the Third District, will speak at Wytheville, October 21st, when he is to appear on the platform with the Democratic congressional nominee, General Rufus A. Ayers. Senator Swanson is scheduled to make several speeches there.

At Wytheville, he is to have a big Democratic rally at Palmer's street, 25th, when the speakers will be Senator Martin, Speaker Byrd and Dr. McKeen. These distinguished Democrats will ask for the national nominees of the party and also for Congressman Flood.

He was taken to the Harlem Police Court, where Frank Case, proprietor of the Algonquin, asked that a charge against him be brought. He gave his name as Paul Renaud, and was a guest there, Magistrate McKim said he could not entertain such a charge. According to the strength of the posts, Renaud was held in $500 bail for examination today. At this time, Miss Walker, who had been arrested in connection with this week, will appear as a witness.

If robbery was Renaud's mission, he was on the right track, for Miss Walker had lost her week's salary with her jewels on the dresser. "I am not a heroine," the actress confessed. "I was not even brave, nor were any of the others. When we were taken to the police court, I just yelled. And I saw my husband push the bellboy between himself and the man," she added.

She said that who does not speak English, says he is French and that he has been in America eight days. He went to the Algonquin Sunday and looked at several rooms, but complained that the prices were too high.

HOMELESS DOGS IN PACK.

ATTACK AND TEAR COW.

FERGUS FALLS, MINN.—Special.

Dogs gathered in a pack exactly like wolves attacked a cow in a pasture near Fergus Falls, Minn., and the dogs and the bellowing of the cow and several got out with guns in the gray dawn of the morning. They found that the dogs had driven or scared away the cow, and they were making efforts to tear her to pieces.

One large bulldog had her by the neck and others were on her back and head. The farmer saw the dogs and tried to shoot at them, but the dogs were too close. The dogs were attacked with shotguns and rifles and after several of them had been hit they scattered in all directions. The cow was gotten out and her ears had been torn off, her back was lacerated all over the body. She was a fine Jersey and a quiet, inoffensive animal, but the dogs, having been driven from the pasture, were literally torn to pieces had not help arrived.

There were dogs of half a dozen breeds in the pack.
